

25th September 2022

Center of Policy Research And Governance hosted the Y20 co-chair on 22nd, September 2022 at its office in New Delhi

The Center of Policy Research and Governance hosted Indonesia's co-chair of the Y20, Michael Victor Sianipar, to speak about the plans for India's upcoming G20 presidency and the participation of youth and society in the G20 consultation.

While keeping the Y20 Indonesia themes of Sustainable and livable environment, Youth Employment, Digital Transformation, and Diversity and Inclusion as the core, the discussants noted the potential areas for Y20 India and its prospective themes. Youth, Development, Employment, and Sustainable Development, therefore remained the main topics of discussion in thursday's meeting.

The Director of CPRG, Dr. Ramanand, highlighted the level of expertise needed by India to host the G20 in the upcoming year and the CPRG's contributions to the themes can serve as a yardstick to prepare the outcome document for the G20-Y20 presidency roadmap. He laid a great emphasis on the engagement of young innovators in the preparation of the document which can lead to an ingenious discussion and encouragement of social innovation in the students. CPRG is working on student engagement projects on the themes of Youth, Development, Employment, and Sustainable Development to foster the G20 India agendas paving the way for the overall economic development of India and the world.

By hosting the G20 countries India will be playing a vital role in serving as a platform to voice its major concerns about economic and social issues on a global scale. The G20 presidency will serve as an opportunity for India and all the developing nations to express their concerns and come forward with efficacious solutions for the promotion of global economic growth.

Sincerely,

Dr Ramanand
